

St. Louis Redbirds Baseball Club

2013-2014 Season

The St. Louis Redbirds baseball club was formed in 1987 and has been an Elite program throughout the Midwest ever since. The Redbirds are a competitive baseball organization with the goal of developing players to succeed at the high school, collegiate, and professional levels. Several players from the Redbirds have moved onto compete at the college and professional levels. Former Redbird players include David Freese of the St. Louis Cardinals and Ryan Howard of the Philadelphia Phillies.

Mission Statement:

To advance the baseball knowledge of each individual player, strengthen their mental and physical skills for greater competition and to prepare them for the high school, college, and professional levels.

St. Louis Redbirds High School Teams

2013-2014 Season

The St. Louis Redbirds will be fielding High School teams at the 15U, 16U, 17U, and 18U levels. The 15U and 16U teams will be divided into the REDBIRDS ELITE and REDBIRDS PREMIER. The Elite teams will be playing a more accelerated schedule with a very high level of competition. The Premier teams will be playing a mid-major schedule and will be designed around a more developmental approach.
